J7242 – Strategic Communication Leadership

Summer Session 2020
3 credit hour course
This is an online course that is administered via Canvas Learning Management System

COURSE OVERVIEW

The course is designed for students who are eager to develop their skills and abilities in management and leadership with likely outcome that they will be leaders in media and communication organizations or as entrepreneurs. Rooted in principles of strategic communication and ethical persuasion, it will help students develop individual skills and abilities and the mindset of helping others achieve their goals. This course calls on students to commit to the process of their own growth and self-discovery and to help foster the growth and development of fellow learners. Inspired by the experience and writings of CEO and world-renowned leader David Novak (Strategic Communication alumnus 1974), this is the one of three leadership courses offered through the Novak Leadership Institute.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

1. To understand leadership principles from David Novak’s Taking People with You (TPWY) leadership program, and from other top leaders and researchers.
2. To understand the power of recognition and learn how to motivate and empower colleagues, other leaders, and fellow students.
3. To understand how principles of strategic communication, including insight-driven thinking and creativity, contribute to effective leadership.
4. To develop self-awareness about your own strengths and weaknesses in leadership and develop a plan for constant self-improvement.
5. To understand that success as a leader or member of an organization requires that we all need people to help us along the way—and we need to help them.
6. To develop an Individual Leadership Plan (ILP) that will be an evergreen portfolio of your goals, skills, plans and knowledge that you will carry with you throughout your leadership courses and into your professional careers.
7. To enhance your knowledge and skills in interpersonal and organizational communication and understand potential barriers to effective communication.
8. To improve your presentation skills to target audiences and enhance your persuasiveness.
9. To understand and learn how to address issues of diversity and potential implicit bias that may impede individual and organizational success.
10. To develop greater sensitivity to potential ethical breaches and issues, and to strengthen skills in applying ethical principles.
PROFESSORS

Lead Instructor for J7242 Summer Session 2020

Eleanor Farnen (ABD, MA ’01, BJ ’76, BA ’76, University of Missouri) is founder and president of Strategists LLC, a media and marketing consultancy headquartered in Columbia, MO and publisher of CityWatch-Columbia. Farnen has more than 30 years of experience in business, government and academia. She has worked for and advised major corporations across industries, including Honeywell International where she was a marketing and national account sales executive in the automotive sector under the leadership of Chairman and CEO Larry Bossidy, Verizon Wireless, Wal-Mart, Dow Chemical and Fleet Financial Group. Farnen was also vice president and group manager of Ketchum Communications-Washington, DC in charge of corporate and environmental accounts. Farnen began her career as Chief of Public Affairs for the RI Department of Environmental Management and served as a policy advisor to former RI Governor Bruce G. Sundlun, former U.S. Senator Claiborne Pell and U.S. Senator Jack Reed.

She has taught graduate level courses in theory, quantitative research and new media business models at the School of Journalism. Her research focus has examined media investment practices and the effect of public ownership on newspaper profitability.

Novak Leadership Institute Faculty

Margaret Duffy (Ph.D., University of Iowa) is professor of Strategic Communication at the Missouri School of Journalism and Executive Director of the Novak Leadership Institute. An author and consultant, Duffy conducts research and advises media organizations around the world. Her diverse consulting clients include Estee Lauder and the U. S. Army and she has obtained grants from the Pew and Knight Foundations. An award-winning scholar, Duffy’s research focuses on organizational communication, visual communication, narrative, digital media, news, and persuasion ethics. She is a former marketing executive and serves on the board of the Institute for Advertising Ethics.

Brandon Butcher (BJ ’07, MA ’08) is Associate Director of the Novak Leadership Institute at the Missouri School of Journalism. Since 2012, he has taught courses in the Strategic Communication including strategic writing & design, strategic campaigns (AdZou), and social media marketing. Butcher’s advertising career includes stints on the client and agency sides with roles spanning creative, strategy and brand management. Getting his start at Dallas-based The Richards Group, Butcher served as digital brand manager for national accounts including QuikTrip, Zales, SMU, and Children’s Health. He then worked as a creative director for Learfield Sports, developing print, digital and outdoor campaigns for corporate sponsors of leading NCAA Division I athletic programs. More recently he has served as marketing director for start-up companies in the health and craft beverage industries. Butcher also has extensive experience in nonprofit leadership, and has directed a wide range of mentorship, leadership and service programs for teens and college students in both domestic and international settings.

COURSE STRUCTURE & ASSIGNMENTS

Leadership Development Teams and LDT Guide Reports (100 Points)
A crucial element of the course will be your Leadership Development Team (LDT). You will be working in small teams with the primary goal of helping your team members in their own leadership development process by sharing your goals, concerns, and insights, including the results of your workbook exercises (see below). Each week, a different member of your LDT will serve as a guide to help facilitate your team’s discussion. The guide will also be responsible for submitting a summary report of that week’s session. At the start of the semester your team will create a LDT Guide Schedule so you will be able to prepare in advance to lead discussion for your assigned week.

LDT Guide Reports must include the following:
- One paragraph reflection on your role as the LDT Guide (What did you observe regarding group dynamics? What tactics did you use to help facilitate discussion?)
- Three to five highlights or themes from your LDT’s discussion
- One key takeaway you will apply to your personal development as a leader

Note: LDT Guide Reports must be submitted via Canvas by Friday at 5 p.m. during assigned week. Each Guide receives an individual grade.

Leadership Development Exercises (No Grade)
Each week, you will complete exercises in your TPWY Leadership Development Guide workbook. The exercises offer a hands-on way to apply the principles and ideas from course lectures and readings. You will share your completed exercises with your Leadership Development Team and receive feedback. Note: Personal exercises will not be graded but active participation is required.

Weekly Readings and Discussion Questions (50 Points Each/250 Points Total)
Each week, you will have required readings based on the course schedule. These readings will be the subject of the Discussion Questions (5 in total). Readings may consist of chapters from David Novak’s books, excerpts from other books, relevant articles from credible online or print publications, or scholarly journal articles. Discussion Questions (DQs) must be completed on Canvas by Sunday at 11:59 p.m. the week they are assigned. Peer responses must be completed by Tuesday at 11:59 p.m.

Discussion Question Grading Criteria
- Response demonstrated thoughtful analysis of the unit and topic, showed critical reflection, and provided strong points, supported with clear examples. (30 pts)
- Peer response added insight to thinking on the subject. (10 pts per comment)

Professional Memo and TED-style Talk (200 Points)
Instead of traditional tests, you will write one business style memo and complete one TED-style talk on a leadership topic of your choosing. Each one is worth 100 points for a total of 200 points. The goal is to see how well you apply course concepts, solve problems, think critically, and write and present persuasively.
• Memo should be roughly 600-800 words (approximately 3 pages, double-spaced) and cite sources using APA Style (https://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/section/2/10/).
• The TED-style talk should be 3-5 minutes in length.

Final Paper/8-10 pages in length with annotated bibliography (250 Points)
Students will research and write a final paper on a leadership question or topic of interest. Proposed topics must be approved by the professor and include an initial list of academic and practical articles to support further research and analysis of the topic. You may expand on the topic you chose for your professional memo and Ted-style talk. Your final paper should include a review and analysis of at least 10 scholarly articles that relate to your subject area. You may also reference articles that have appeared in business and professional publications and books. Your annotated bibliography will include a list of citations followed by a brief (usually about 150-200 words) descriptive and evaluative paragraph of the article, book or document. Your annotated bibliography is not included in the 8-10 page length of your paper. Examples of academic journals include the following:
• Journal of Leadership & Organizational Studies
• Management Communication Quarterly
• The Leadership Quarterly, Strategic Management Studies
• Journal of Interactive Advertising
• Journal of Advertising
• Journal of Advertising Research
• Journal of Current Issues & Research in Advertising
• Journal of Interactive Marketing
• Journalism & Mass Communication Quarterly

Examples of professional publications include Harvard Business Review, Ad Age, Marketing News, and practical books that provide leadership and management advice. We encourage you to consult with Journalism Library staff for assistance and take advantage of the Novak Leadership Library Collection.

Participation
Participation in an online course is critical in understanding the material, asking questions, sharing your thoughts and opinions with your instructor and peers on the discussion board and presenting your work. The grade for participation is based on the instructor’s evaluation of your contribution to the class and professionalism.

Submitting Work
This is an online course taught on the Canvas platform. It is important that you familiarize yourself with its various functions, including accessing readings and submitting assignments. It is wise to save often and back up your work on another hard drive or other device. If you are having trouble with Canvas, please contact the Mizzou IT Help Desk at 573-882-5000.

University Policies
Within the Syllabus tab of the Canvas course site, students will find links to various university policies on academic issues, copyright and acceptable use, as well as a statement of nondiscrimination. Additionally, here are policies related specifically to this course and the Missouri School of Journalism.

Academic Integrity
Academic honesty is fundamental to the activities and principles of a university. All members of the academic community must be confident that each person's work has been responsibly and honorably acquired, developed and presented. Any effort to gain an advantage not given to all students is dishonest whether or not the effort is successful. The academic community regards breaches of the academic integrity rules as extremely serious matters. Sanctions for such a breach may include academic sanctions from the instructor, including failing the course for any violation, to disciplinary sanctions ranging from probation to expulsion.

Academic misconduct includes but is not limited to the following:

- Use of materials from another author w/o citation or attribution
- Use of verbatim materials from another author w/o citation or attribution
- Extensive use of materials from past assignments w/o permission of your instructor
- Extensive use of materials from assignments in other classes w/o permission of instructor
- Fabricating information in news or feature stories, whether for publication or not
- Fabricating sources in news or feature stories, whether for publication or not
- Fabricating quotes in news or feature stories, whether for publication or not
- Lack of full disclosure or permission from editors when controversial reportorial techniques, such as going undercover to get news, are used

When in doubt about plagiarism, paraphrasing, quoting or collaboration, consult with your instructor. For closed-book exams and exercises, academic misconduct includes conferring with other class members, copying or reading someone else's test and using notes and materials without prior permission of the instructor. For open-book exams and exercises, academic misconduct includes copying or reading someone else's work.

Dishonesty and Misconduct Reporting Procedures
MU faculty are required to report all instances of academic dishonesty or classroom misconduct to the appropriate campus officials. Allegations of classroom misconduct must be reported to MU’s Office of Student Conduct. Allegations of academic misconduct must be reported to MU’s Office of the Provost.

Professional Standards and Ethics
The School of Journalism is committed to the highest standards of academic and professional ethics and expects its students to adhere to those standards. Students should be familiar with the Code of Ethics of the Society of Professional Journalists and adhere to its restrictions. Students are expected to observe strict honesty in academic programs and as representatives of school-related media. Should any student be guilty of plagiarism, falsification, misrepresentation or other forms of dishonesty in any assigned work, that student may be subject to a failing grade from the instructor and such disciplinary action as may be necessary under University regulations.

Copyright in course materials
The materials you encounter in your coursework at Mizzou is subject to many different types of copyright protection, depending on the author as well as how it is used. In a single course you may encounter materials created by your instructor, an article that is shared with you in an extemporaneous way under the Teach Act, and materials such as course packets where each copy includes a royalty payment to the author. As a student, you are responsible for how you use course materials and must ensure that the rights of copyright holders are not violated by sharing them, posting materials online, etc.

Student work and copyright
Just like materials created by your instructor are protected by copyright, the things you create as a student are owned by you. For example, if your instructor uses TurnItIn to check for plagiarism in student papers, the University has an agreement with TurnItIn so that no papers are shared with that company and are only used to cross-reference.

Audio and Video Recordings of Classes
University of Missouri System Executive Order No. 38 lays out principles regarding the sanctity of classroom discussions at the university. The policy is described fully in Section 200.015 of the Collected Rules and Regulations. In this class, students may make audio or video recordings of course activity unless specifically prohibited by the faculty member. However, the redistribution of audio or video recordings of statements or comments from the course to individuals who are not students in the course is prohibited without the express permission of the faculty member and of any students who are recorded. Students found to have violated this policy are subject to discipline in accordance with provisions of section 200.020 of the Collected Rules and Regulations of the University of Missouri pertaining to student conduct matters.

Office for Civil Rights & Title IX Information:
University of Missouri policies prohibit discrimination on the basis of race, color, national origin, ancestry, religion, sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, pregnancy, age, genetic information, disability and protected veteran status. Discrimination includes any form of unequal treatment such as denial of opportunities, harassment, and violence. Sex-based violence includes rape, sexual assault, unwanted touching, stalking, dating/interpersonal violence, and sexual exploitation.
If you experience discrimination, you are encouraged (but not required) to report the incident to the MU Office for Civil Rights & Title IX. Learn more about your rights and options at civilrights.missouri.edu or call 573-882-3880. You also may make an anonymous report online.

Students may also contact the Relationship & Sexual Violence Prevention (RSVP) Center, a confidential resource, for advocacy and other support related to rape or power-based personal violence at rsvp@missouri.edu or 573-882-6638, or go to rsvp.missouri.edu.

Both the Office for Civil Rights & Title IX and the RSVP Center can provide assistance to students who need help with academics, housing, or other issues.

Required Referral: Mizzou employees are required to refer all incidents of sex discrimination to the Office for Civil Rights & Title IX. The Office connects students with resources and helps them decide whether they wish to file a complaint of discrimination. To learn more, contact title9@missouri.edu or 573-882-3880, or go to civilrights.missouri.edu.

Students with Disabilities:
If you anticipate barriers related to the format or requirements of this course, if you have emergency medical information to share with me, or if you need to make arrangements in case the building must be evacuated, please let me know as soon as possible. If disability related accommodations are necessary (for example, a note taker, extended time on exams, captioning), please register with the MU Disability Center, S5 Memorial Union, 573-882-4696, and then notify me of your eligibility for reasonable accommodations.

Religious Holidays
Students are excused for recognized religious holidays. Let your instructor know in advance if you have a conflict. For more information on the University’s commitment to religious diversity, please visit https://diversity.missouri.edu/religions/

Intellectual Pluralism
The University community welcomes intellectual diversity and respects student rights. Students who have questions concerning the atmosphere in this class (including respect for diverse opinions) may contact your faculty chair or associate dean; or the director of the Office of Students Rights and Responsibilities (http://osrr.missouri.edu/); the MU Equity Office, or equity@missouri.edu. All students will have the opportunity to submit an anonymous evaluation of the instructor(s) at the end of the course.

Professional Values and Competencies:
The Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communications requires that, irrespective of their particular specialization, all graduates should be aware of certain core values and competencies and be able to:

- Understand and apply the principles and laws of freedom of speech and press for the country in which the institution that invites ACEJMC is located, as well as receive instruction in and understand the range of systems of freedom of expression around the world, including the right to dissent, to monitor and criticize power, and to assemble and petition for redress of grievances;
• Demonstrate an understanding of the history and role of professionals and institutions in shaping communications;
• Demonstrate an understanding of gender, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation and, as appropriate, other forms of diversity in domestic society in relation to mass communications;
• Demonstrate an understanding of the diversity of peoples and cultures and of the significance and impact of mass communications in a global society;
• Understand concepts and apply theories in the use and presentation of images and information;
• Demonstrate an understanding of professional ethical principles and work ethically in pursuit of truth, accuracy, fairness and diversity;
• Think critically, creatively and independently;
• Conduct research and evaluate information by methods appropriate to the communications professions in which they work;
• Write correctly and clearly in forms and styles appropriate for the communications professions, audiences and purposes they serve;
• Critically evaluate their own work and that of others for accuracy and fairness, clarity, appropriate style and grammatical correctness;
• Apply basic numerical and statistical concepts;
• Apply current tools and technologies appropriate for the communications professions in which they work, and to understand the digital world.
